Nancy Wynne Is Proud of Philadelphia at Newport Horse Show—She Tells of Various Week-End Doings and Scents an Engagement

WE HAVE cause to be proud of the showing of Philadelphians at the Newport Horse Show last week. Did you know that Connie Vaucian carried off ten firsts, four seconds and two thirds prizes, besides three championships and two reserves? In fact, she led the winners of the show. Isaac Clothier's horses were the best in the jumping class. So Miss Vaucian and Mr. Clothier not only kept Philadelphia decidedly on the map, but led off with honors.

The Joe Wideners, Paul Mills, Berwings, Bob Cassatts and various other Philadelphians who are at Newport were at the show every day, in the boxes and about the oval. Mrs. Alexander Brown and Kitty Penn Smith went over each day from Narragansett. Kitty rode Eleanor Sears' horses for her and looked as usual awfully well in her riding clothes.

Do you know I saw Kitty at a party last winter in an evening gown, and honest-to-godness I did not know her? It was the first time I had ever seen her in anything but riding clothes. She is very good looking in evening clothes, let me tell you. This was a reddish frock with no color to relieve it and it brought out the whiteness of her neck and arms and was extremely becoming.

YOU know the Gilbert Mathers came up from Cape May this week and have moved into their Radnor house for the coming season. Bud and Hansell Patterson have taken the cottage they had and over this week-end have Theodora Lillie and Katherine Ogden with them. Helen Sewell, Hansell has a baby, you know, just about two months old, besides the one two years of age.

THE younger set of Cape May was well represented last week in the South Jersey tennis tournament. It was played on the Ocean City Yacht Club courts. Helen Sewell, Betty Strubing, Eddie Cassard and Pat Thornburg, were the four Cape May representatives. They have been taking part in everything going it seems to me, that is, the girls were in the boys' singles and doubles both, and the boys were in the men's singles and doubles and in the mixed doubles.

IT is a great happiness to her friends to know that Margaret Smith Hart has entirely recovered from her very severe illness and was able to entertain a few of her friends at bridge last week. She was desperately ill for many weeks, you know. There was great anxiety about her condition, but thank heaven she is well and strong again now. She and Tommy and their tiny daughter have been spending the summer with Margaret's mother, Mrs. Harry Clifton Adams. Mrs. Adams is at present spending a few weeks in Northeast Harbor.

I HEAR that Mr. and Mrs. Frederick English have returned to this part of the country after an extensive tour of the West. Mrs. English has gone down to Cape May to join Beatrice and Elaine, who have been spending most of the summer at the Windsor. Those girls have been indefatigable workers, as indeed their mother has been, too.

SPEAKING of Mrs. English, makes me think of the Independence Square Red Cross work rooms, which are to be opened again this week. In fact, they were only closed a few days in August, for Mrs. George Lorimer, who is chairman of that auxiliary, has come in frequently to the rooms since her return from the West, to see to mill and various other things.

Mrs. English is one of Mrs. Lorimer's right-hand helpers in the work for the Red Cross, as are the rest of the board of managers. Florence Hopkinson, you know, succeeded her mother, Mrs. Clinton Rogers Woodruff, who did such fine work as treasurer before her sad and sudden death last winter.

DID I tell you about them? Well, she's as tiny as they can be, and he is very tall and very handsome and dark and she is blond and fair (doesn't it read like a book?). And he is perfectly fascinated, so fascinated that if she put gives him the tiniest sign of encouragement he goes right to it. Something tells me he's going to get that encouragement, too, because I happened, oh just by the merest chance, of course, to see the expression in her eyes the other day when she looked at him and he was not looking at her. I'll admit it was a remarkable moment, for every time I see them together, and that's soon pretty often, he absolutely has had no eyes at all for any one else. Indeed, I'm sure it's a go, and as soon as I know I'll tell you. You just ought to have seen him help her over the fence the other day in the quaint New England town where they are both spending a holiday.

If she had not had a piece of carved ivory he could not have been more careful. You never can tell where Nancy will appear on the scene, can you? You cannot. NANCY WYNNE.

RESERVE BANK ADVISES LABOR TO CUT LUXURIES

Says Demand for Unnecessary Things Is Lessening Output of Essentials and Keeping Cost of Living High

The Federal Reserve Bank of this district, in a statement issued today, suggests that a lessening in the demand for luxuries by labor, which "has been spoiled by the unusual high wages and bonuses existing during the war period," might result in a reduction in the cost of living. "It would, says the bank, 'permit a greater production of the ordinary necessities of life.'"

CATHOLICS HERE AID WAR-RAZED SCHOOLS

Catholics of this country are being asked to contribute to a fund for the restoration of the Universities of Lille and Louvain, which were virtually destroyed during the German advance. This fact became known when a special collection was taken up in Catholic churches of that city yesterday for that purpose. The collections followed the reading from the altar of an encyclical letter from the pope in which the head of the Catholic Church appeals to the faithful to contribute generously toward the fund.

CONVENTIONS HERE WILL SET NEW RECORD

September will be the biggest month in conventions and gatherings of various kinds in the history of the city, not only in number of delegates attending, but in the influence and importance of the organizations. The Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, through its convention and exhibition bureau, estimates that the number of delegates and visitors during the next four weeks will be above 200,000.

Mahoney, of 1227 Locust street. The bride's dress was of white charmeuse and her veil was held in place by real orange blossoms. The bridesmaid wore pale yellow chiffon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. D. Nevin. After a short bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney will live in Germantown.

FORMER SOLDIERS' WOUNDS PERMIT WORK AT "HOBBIES"

Disabilities Prevent Return to Old Jobs, So Occupations Are Found at Favorite Work of Former Leisure Hours. What is your hobby? How do you spend your leisure hours? The answers to such questions have in a number of instances led vocational advisers of the Federal Board for Vocational Education to suggest new occupations for soldiers whose disabilities prevent their return to old jobs. A chauffeur holding tennis championships and baseball records was disabled in France, and is now training for physical director in a Y. M. C. A. An unskilled laborer, with his leg injured by shrapnel, because of his love for flowers, has chosen horticulture as a life work. A draughtsman lost his leg, and, as there is a lot of walking to be done by a drug clerk, some new vocation was necessary. He went to the federal board for help. The adviser found that he had always been very deft with his fingers and liked to work with his hands. He is now making good in a course for watchmaking and repairing. Many such cases could be cited in which the recreation of the disabled man has been a deciding factor in the choice of a new vocation.

tributed the largest possible volume of commodities, and to exercise reasonable economy in order that money, goods and services may be devoted primarily to the liquidation of debt and to the satisfaction of the demand for necessities, rather than to indulgence in extravagance or the gratification of a desire for luxuries.

"It has been suggested that labor leaders teach members of the unions the wisdom of the foregoing statement. The bank blames some retail dealers for high prices. It says: 'Some of the blame for present excessive costs may be laid on the retailer, since the percentage of increase in his prices has very often been far above the percentage of increase in the prices which he pays to the wholesaler.'"

Money Being Asked to Restore Universities of Lille and Louvain

No official information on the subject has reached Archbishop Dougherty, of this city, nor has the pope's request that special collections be made arrived at the archdiocesan residence, in Boston, it is believed. The first archdiocese to be given the opportunity to contribute to the fund, which, in a short time, is expected to develop into a nationwide movement. The universities of Louvain, in Belgium, and Lille, in France, have long been regarded as two of the most important centers of Catholic learning in the world.
